OSHA: KNOW WHAT IT MEANS FOR YOUR FARM

OSHA now has a presence in the dairy industry, leaving many dairy owners with questions about compliance and OSHA farm inspections. This session will provide substantive OSHA information including, but not limited to:

- Which farms fall under OSHA regulations
- The impact of OSHA's Dairy Farm Local Emphasis Programs on Wisconsin dairy farms
- Items subject to OSHA field inspections.

Wednesday, January 7 (register by December 31)

ANSWERS TO TWO KEY OSHA QUESTIONS

1. What should we do if the OSHA inspector shows up on our dairy farm?
2. What happens if our dairy farm receives an OSHA citation and notification of proposed penalty?

Get the answers to these questions, as legal counsel discuss best practices for dealing with OSHA inspectors, conduct of the inspection itself, and other OSHA investigation issues including interviews with employees and contractors. This session will further discuss the meaning of an OSHA Citation and a Notification of Proposed Penalty, and the steps and strategies during OSHA's enforcement process including settlement negotiations and hearings.

Wednesday, February 11 (register by February 4)

THE MIGRANT AND SEASONAL AGRICULTURAL WORKER PROTECTION ACT

When it goes beyond OSHA.... This session will discuss this federal statute, which often becomes an issue at the time OSHA inspects a farming operation, as it relates to your employees. This can result in further enforcement issues by the Department of Labor, and may result in penalties far in excess of the OSHA penalties. Be sure you are aware how the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act can be tied to OSHA.
