PRESENTED BY PDPW

Presenter: Dan Basse

US and World Impact of 2016's Crops and Markets

Economist Daniel Basse will put his deep understanding of agricultural price trends to work for participants of a two-part webinar series this fall. He'll apply his many years of experience in the commodity business to sort through production agriculture numbers, trends, and forecasts.

Wednesday, September 21 (register by Sept. 14)

2017 COMMODITY CROP TRENDS

The crop-growing season throughout the United States and around the globe is coming to a close. We'll spend time with Dan Basse reviewing how the most recent growing season impacted domestic and global supplies. He'll also sort through projections of what the year ahead holds for dairy producers in regards to forage, corn and protein prices.

Wednesday, October 12 (register by Oct. 5)

GLOBAL MARKETS: THE IMPACT

The world dairy markets are in recovery. But have the European Union segment and Australia, New Zealand and other parts of Oceania brought their cow numbers down enough to sustain a lasting bullish trend? Or will the upward trend in prices remain for a time? And what about China's Whole Milk Powder impact? Basse will lead a discussion of what effect these markets will have on the US and the rest of the world.

Dan Basse has been in the commodity business since 1979 and is President of AgResource Company, a domestic and international agricultural research firm in Chicago that forecasts domestic and world agricultural price trends. AgResource provides their research to such segments of the industry as farmers, elevators, soy, corn, wheat processors and millers, food and trading companies, meat packers, importers and exporters, and their research is sold around the globe.
